

Once again, you’ve been summoned to the gothic manor house at the edge of Doskvol’s Brightstone district. LORD HARROW’s (enigmatic, arcane, old-fashioned) pale fingers drum rhythmically on a vitrine as you enter his dingy study. Scrolls and exotic artifacts line the study’s walls. Embers of dusklight cast long shadows onto Lord Harrow’s gaunt face. He steeples his fingers as he addresses you.

“My benefactor requires a curious artifact. The catacombs beneath the SANCTORIUM are home to many valuable oddities. In that labyrinth of coffins and crypts is a burial chamber containing an amulet. Bring it to me and I will reward you handsomely.”

SCENES & COMPLICATIONS

Outside LORD HARROW’S STUDY, bronze-masked Spirit Wardens confront you.

* The Summoned Horrors table in the Blades in the Dark rulebook (p. 304) contains ideas for Demons and Horrors

WORLD BUILDING QUESTIONS

- ❖ What does the Amulet look like? Does wearing or carrying it grant any abilities?
- ❖ How will you recognize the burial chamber? Is a passphrase or ritual required to enter?
- ❖ Is someone you were close to buried beneath the Sanctorium?

Lord Harrow’s lips fold back into a sinister smile as you reveal the amulet. His teeth—long and unnaturally pointed—resemble those of a carnivore. He delicately places the amulet in a display case beside a black gemstone and a pair of SPIRIT WARDEN masks.

“Excellent work! My benefactor will be most pleased. I think you’ll find your payment quite generous. I do hope you didn’t have too much trouble accessing my—the—burial chamber. Now, if you’ll excuse me, I have other business to attend to. I’m sure you can show yourselves out.”

Mournful wails echo through a doorway behind Lord Harrow from some unseen place in the depths of the manor. His smile widens as he gestures for you to leave.
